Delightful moments of heartfelt services...

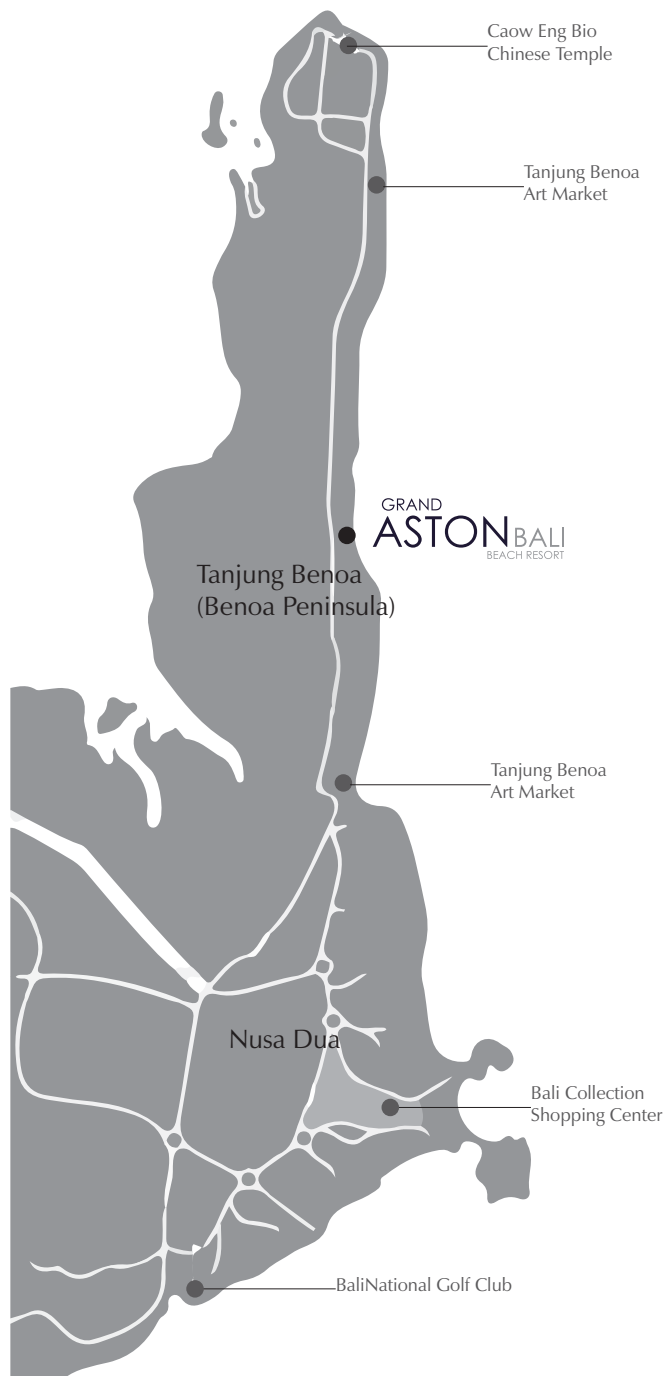

Bali and Tanjung Benoa, Nusa Dua

Bali is an island and province of Indonesia. The province includes the island of Bali and a few smaller neighbouring islands, notably Nusa Penida, Nusa Lembongan, and Nusa Ceningan. It is located at the westernmost end of the Lesser Sunda Islands, between Java to the west and Lombok to the east. Its capital of Denpasar is located at the southern part of the island.

Tanjung Benoa is a fisherman village formed from the delta of white sand and flanked by the sea in both side. Before becoming the tourist destination, the life style of local residence at Tanjung Benoa are very simple where most of them are become fisherman who done their activities on the sea daily. Since 1980, this area began develop and change where the international class hotels have been built including restaurants so that gradually this place become famous among the tourists.

The government of Bali Province has established Tanjung Benoa Beach as Marine Sport Center because it is blessed by the beautiful white sandy beach with calm seawater. The palm and tropical trees are able to create the shady atmosphere including the calm seawater those are ideally for swimming, relaxation and walking on the beach. Many tourist in particular family travelers come and stay at this area to fulfill their holidays in Bali.

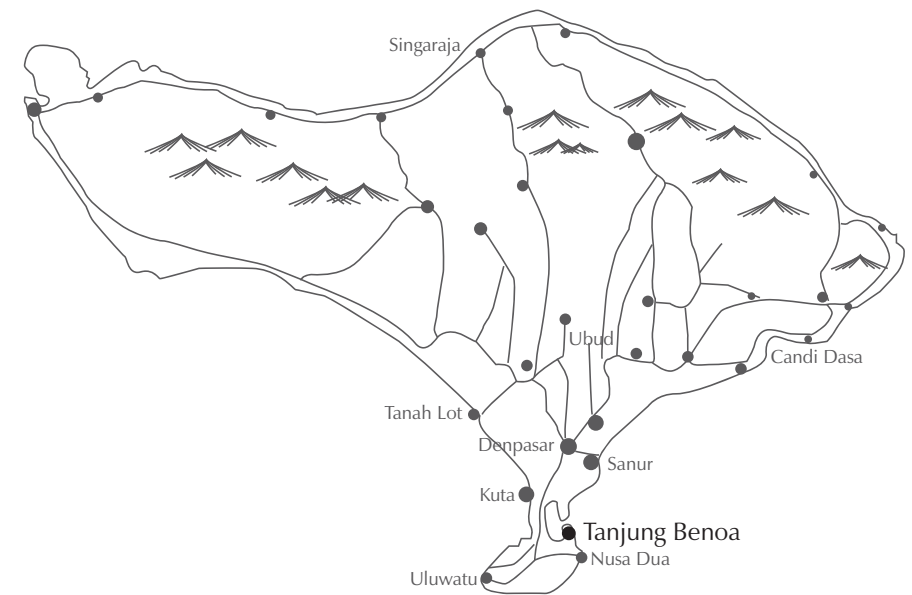

Geographic

Tanjung Benoa is geographically located in south part of Bali Island, just a step from Nusa Dua, an exclusive resort area in the island of god. Here, we can discover the beautiful Hindu temples like Dalem Tanjung Benoa Temple and Segara Temple. You can also find traditional market, Buddhist temple and across of this village we can see the Benoa Harbor. There are several turtle conservation managed by the local residence who taking care of turtle from baby turtle and at the end will be released to the sea.

Place of interest

Fishing Village

A sharp contrast to expensive and up-market Tanjung Benoa is the fishing village at the northern end of the peninsula. Here, from four until six in the morning, local fishermen sell their catch at Pasar Desa Pakraman (the village market) after fishing from the early evening until midnight. Prices are very cheap but there's only enough catch to supply local kitchens. Before foreigners discovered the peninsula's potential for water sports around 1975, everything in this village was strictly traditional. Since then, many of the fishermen have turned to the marine recreation business. However, you can still see conventional fishing boats side by side with more modern vessels at the harbour near the Segara gas station.

Caow Eng Bio Chinese Temple

Caow Eng Bio Chinese Temple is one among the oldest Chinese temples in the province. It is claimed to be more a place of Chinese traditions than Buddhist, though on the left side is a 'Buddha room' (Maha Cetya).

Celebrations and religious events are held up to three days here, but the Chinese New Year and the Vesak are the busiest of all. Pieces of paper next to the donation box, believed to be a charm for both your house and wallet, are given away to all visitors.

Location: Take Jalan Segara Ening from the crossroads of Catus Pata. Follow the road until the end; the temple is on the right side

Tanjung Benoa Beach

Here, unlike in most areas on the island, you won't have a direct clear view of the beach from the road. The access from the coastline to Jalan Pratama is packed with commercial establishments: resorts, hotels, restaurants, and small plazas or markets. Just after the 'Pos Pecalang' in front of the Paul Smith shop, however, is a large open field that accesses the beach.

The sea is often busier than the beach itself as people tend not to sunbathe here, preferring water sports instead. With such calm water, swimming is delightful but the sheer amount of crafts at anchor and buzzing around makes things a little crowded.
